Regulator

Regulators control output pressure in a system. Pressure in a system of lines acting over a specific amount of distance. These devices are fitted with mechanical components that react to changes in the downstream air pressure. The regulator allows a constant pressure to be maintained across a pressure source as long as the input pressure remains greater than the output rated pressure. The working air in a regulator is vented to atmosphere. The regulator is used to control pressure in a system.

Pressure Adjustment Knob

Turning the knob clockwise increases the pressure. Turning the knob counter-clockwise decreases the pressure. Lower the pressure for compressed air used in tools.

Regulator Controls Pressure or Force

Note: Always use a regulator with a pressure gauge to monitor and control the performance of a pneumatic system. Every pneumatic system should have a pressure relief valve to prevent over pressure conditions.

Always always utilize your pneumatic system. The regulator used in the 1/2" NPT 150psi 1000psi and has a self-sealing feature.

Speed or Flow Valves

Flow valves control the speed of air flow within one of a pneumatic circuit or component. There is a restriction of the volume of air moving through the valve or component over a period of time (flow or restriction). Flow control is adjusted using the needle valve. Turning the needle valve clockwise increases the flow rate. The higher the flow rate, the faster the component will operate.

Note: Not to regulated air use directionally used flow slowly in the other direction.

The flow slowing air direction is done using a large spring contained on the valve. The regulated air flow direction is done with a small spring. Flow control is best accomplished by regulating the flow of air out of a circuit or component.
