I explained also that martial arts have been developed for the reason to kill and that the combat sport emerged afterwards out of the martial art Furthermore I described the specific style Wing Chun Essential is that the techniques are basically learned by doing six forms and practicing in pairs without actual fight The aim is to injure the opponent without wasting energy which means as effective as possible Wing Chun lays importance to the centreline because this is the most vulnerable part of the body Also Wing Chun does not act with brute force but with deflections and uncommitted techniques
