Claiming History Eleni Coundouriotis,1999 Places African literature novels of the colonial and postcolonial periods written in both French and English in their proper context within the field of postcolonial studies and illustrates how historical narration not only answers back to Europe s colonialist legacy but also serves as a complex form of dissent among Africans themselves

Secret Societies Reconsidered: Perspectives on the Social History of Early Modern South China and Southeast Asia David Ownby,Mary F. Somers Heidhues,2016-09-16 A discussion of the development of secret societies within China and among Chinese communities in colonial Southeast Asia in the late 18th and 19th centuries

Blood Oath William W. Johnstone,2016-03-15 Discover the secret they swore not to tell from the bestselling old school horror author of the twisted bizarre and sometimes terrifying The Lineup In 1973 thirteen kids with an appetite for something different went out to play First came the ritual and the dare then the screaming and the blood Before the night was over only eleven children survived to share a terrible secret Twenty six years later the small town of Denton Missouri has been rocked by three brutal murders each victim bound by a childhood friendship stained with blood Far from the shadow of suspicion far from the memories of an unforgivable crime the past has returned with a vengeance And this time the fun and games are just beginning

Africa in America Michael Mullin,1992 In an attempt to lay bare the historical and cultural roots of modern African American societies in the South and the British West Indies Michael Mullin gives a vivid depiction of slave family life economic strategies and religion and their relationship to patterns of resistance and acculturation in two major plantation regions the Caribbean and the American South Generalized observations of plantation slavery usually assumed to be the whole of Africans experience fail to provide definitive answers about how they met and often overcame the challenges and deprivations of their new lives Mullin discusses three phases of slave resistance and religion in Anglo America both on and off plantations During the first or African phase from the 1730s to the 1760s slave resistance was generally sudden violently destructive and charged with African ritual The second phase from the late 1760s to the early 1800s involved plantation slaves who were more conservative and wary The third phase from the late 1760s to the second quarter of the nineteenth century was led by assimilated blacks artisans and drivers who having developed skills both on and off the plantation led the large preemancipation rebellions Mullin s case studies of slaveowners and plantation overseers draw on personal diaries and other documents to reveal memorable men whose approaches to their jobs varied widely and were as much affected by interactions with slaves as by personal background the location of the plantation and the economic climate of the times Extensive archival and anecdotal sources inform this pioneering study of slavery as it was practiced in tidewater Virginia on the rice coast of the Carolinas and in Jamaica and Barbados Bringing his training in anthropology to bear on sources from Great Britain the Caribbean and the United States Mullin offers new and definitive information
