

Gas Industry Unsafe Situations Procedure

These procedures are governed by GSGP011 and gas engineers through GSGP sections. They provide guidance on what to do and what actions need to be taken to control the gas property. They are outlined from the GSI to GSI and engineers should check they have the correct version.

The GSIH states that installers that are Intimidated Gasworkers (IG) should be:

- Reported or made safe
- Refused to be responsible person and with permission of the responsible person, disconnected

Certain unsafe situations must be reported under Reports of Injury, Disease and Dangerous Occurrences Regulations (RIDDOR).

IMMEDIATE DANGER (ID)

is an installation which if used WILL constitute a danger to life or property, in those cases the installer MUST be reported or made safe to the gas engineer or the gas engineer taking safe effectively means putting the appliance or installation beyond use by physical disconnection.

However, with the exception of the gas supplier, who has responsibilities defined in the GSGP (see Section 2), the only person with the legal ability to allow disconnection is the Responsible Person. In the absence of the responsible person, unless to allow disconnection, the gas engineer must advise the gas supplier, who must then take action to make the installation safe.

Examples of ID situations:

- Gas escapes
- Smell of gas or fumes
- Appliances falling or significant tilt
- Signs of spillage or products of combustion (POC)
- Spillage or leakage of POC into building
- Safety devices not operating or made inoperative
- Open vent or gas passages
- Undesired operation that is affecting safe operation of the appliance

Report of the Gas Engineer, the gas engineer will complete a warning notice, which is not responsible person and also attach a warning label to the installation/ appliance in some cases. Appendix and fourth Section 2 of this manual.

At Risk jobs

is an installation which if used WILL constitute a risk to life and property, in those cases the installer should be made safe by issuing AS of the responsible person agrees.

However, if the customer does not agree, the responsible person takes responsibility. The gas engineer will issue confirmation to this effect by entering a report from the responsible person warning notice paperwork.

Examples of ID the situation

- Flare or leaks gas means of inspection
- Emergency Control Valve (ECV) not working correctly (in a non-emergency situation)
- No or insufficient permission to open flue or furnace appliance (provided equipment is operating safely)
- Work with flue access or gas installers
- Inoperative or damaged flue system
- Corrosion or damaged gas passage

NOTE: The above list is not exhaustive

In any of the ID situations for the type of effects listed above, the gas engineer must complete a warning notice, which is not responsible person and also attach a warning label to the installation/ appliance in some cases. Appendix and fourth Section 2 of this manual.

However, if the customer does not agree, the responsible person takes responsibility. The gas engineer will issue confirmation to this effect by entering a report from the responsible person warning notice paperwork.
