Constitution 3.0 Jeffrey Rosen, Benjamin Wittes, 2011-11-11 At the beginning of the twenty first century breathtaking changes in technology are posing stark challenges to our constitutional values From free speech to privacy from liberty and personal autonomy to the right against self incrimination basic constitutional principles are under stress from technological advances unimaginable even a few decades ago let alone during the founding era In this provocative collection America's leading scholars of technology law and ethics imagine how to translate and preserve constitutional and legal values at a time of dizzying technological change Constitution 3 0 explores some of the most urgent constitutional questions of the near future Will privacy become obsolete for example in a world where ubiquitous surveillance is becoming the norm Imagine that Facebook and Google post live feeds from public and private surveillance cameras allowing 24 7 tracking of any citizen in the world How can we protect free speech now that Facebook and Google have more power than any king president or Supreme Court justice to decide who can speak and who can be heard How will advanced brain scan technology affect the constitutional right against self incrimination And on a more elemental level should people have the right to manipulate their genes and design their own babies Should we be allowed to patent new forms of life that seem virtually human The constitutional challenges posed by technological progress are wide ranging with potential impacts on nearly every aspect of life in America and around the world The authors include Jamie Boyle Duke Law School Eric Cohen and Robert George Princeton University Jack Goldsmith Harvard Law School Orin Kerr George Washington University Law School Lawrence Lessig Harvard Law School Stephen Morse University of Pennsylvania Law School John Robertson University of Texas Law School Christopher Slobogin Vanderbilt Law School O Carter Snead Notre

Reframing Transitional Justice Mark A. Drumbl, Kirsten J. Fisher, 2026-04-20 This book challenges the simplicity predestination and self evident nature of contemporary narratives of transitional justice Transitional justice is the field of study that examines how states should reckon with massive human rights abuses The book upends these assumptive narratives on three crucial fronts The first front is that of innovations Here the book questions the ability of transitional justice to deliver tangible successes in an era of rapid and overwhelming technological change and contestation over what constitutes human memory communicative dialogue and reliable evidence The second front involves boundaries Here the book confronts the professed superpower of transitional justice to do more and more in an endless concatenation of additives While there is cause for optimism this book also suggests that transitional justice remains awkward in how it copes with the existential pressures of environmental health and cultural crises On its third front refractions this book identifies how transitional justice addresses racism misogyny and democratic backsliding How the prism of transitional justice interventions refracts these scourges remains inadequate Throughout the book asks readers to imagine where the field and practice of transitional justice could go from here what new innovations are required what boundaries must be stretched or retrenched and what perspectives need to be considered due to new ways of seeing current and past atrocities Accordingly this book will be of considerable interest to academics practitioners working on post conflict reconstruction and students at all levels ranging from undergraduate to post doctoral in the areas of law politics cultural property criminology human rights international relations and technology studies
