Predicting a Quarterback's Fantasy Football Point Output for Daily Fantasy Sports Using Statistical Models Nicholas Aaron King, 2017 In the new age of daily fantasy sports DFS fantasy football has become an enormous revenue generator for DFS sites such as DraftKings and FanDuel Both companies are valued over 1 billion However previous analysis done by popular DFS site Rotogrinders has shown that only the top players are consistently winning the top 10 players much more frequently than the remaining 20,000 players Using complex statistical models they're able to identify top athletes and value picks based on an athlete's draft salary that the average player might not be aware of There is a need to evaluate which methods and algorithms are best at predicting fantasy football point output These methods could then be applied to future DFS contests outside of football to see if they predict other fantasy sports point output well There are few resources and little literature available on this subject Several factors contribute Daily Fantasy Sports are still relatively new and many people are still just starting to get involved in them Also very few people have published their work on their custom models or significant variables since they are generally developing these models for personal use in an attempt to gain an edge in DFS contests and win money Thus there is little to no motivation to make their research or methods publicly available This research will attempt to predict the weekly point output of a quarterback based on a variety of attributes and metrics Finding the important variables and statistical models and learning how to address the volatility in week to week performances for a quarterback will allow us to expand this to other player positions in the future In addition to understanding the best algorithms to apply to weekly point prediction and the best variables to use to predict a quarterback's output this research also seeks to answer the question that is currently being debated in courtrooms across the country should DFS be considered a legal game of skill or a game of luck and therefore online gambling
