

Chapter 18 Lab Dichotomous Keys

Problem

Can you construct a dichotomous key that could be used to identify organisms?

Introduction

In May 2007, scientists and other volunteers gathered in Rock Creek Park, Washington, D.C., to participate in a Shuttlebox walk. A 14-hour survey of species living in the park. Teams walked to 400 sites throughout the park. By the time they were done, the teams had identified more than 300 species!

Teams included experts on different types of organisms such as birds, insects, fungi, and plants. The experts used identification guides, or keys, to help them identify the organisms they found.

In this lab, you will first use a dichotomous key to identify plants. A dichotomous key is built around pairs of statements that describe a visible trait. The reader must select the statement in each pair that best describes an organism. By following the steps in the key, the reader narrows down the list of choices until finally names the organism. After you have learned to use a dichotomous key, you will design your own key for a group of organisms.
