Dream Facades Jack Balderrama Morley, 2026-03-03 For fans of Jia Tolentino and Amanda Montell a probing and lively exploration of the unlikely dwellings we regard on reality TV and what they say about American history modern life and the architecture of our desires People like reality TV There s been a lot written about the cult of celebrity how this reality angle draws us in through a mix of voyeurism and relatability But when we look at the houses on these shows what are we seeing Predominantly multi million dollar single family homes in areas that forcibly removed minority groups and mimic the style of a whitewashed age Why do we watch and covet these conservative homes while professing to want lives unbound by heteronormative patriarchy and outside of suburban fantasia Jack posits two main theories that our relationships with these shows and social media have conflated our physical dwellings with the spaces projected onto and projected out from our screens to create a physical digital hybrid home that we see as representative of our actual home and that what we actually covet when we covet these houses is safety and security not the specifics of the styles being sold Dream Facades focuses on seven reality TV shows Selling Sunset The Kardashians The Real World The Bachelor Trading Spaces The Real Housewives of Atlanta and Fire Island and their specific associated architectural style Morley takes us through reality TV's labyrinthine properties to illuminate what makes us covet these spaces and devour these shows and what that says about America ourselves and the future of design Broadcasting & Cable, 2007-10 Spectator Sport and Fan Behavior, sequel Yair Galily, Simon Pack, Ilan Tamir, 2024-05-15 This Research Topic is the second volume of the Research Topic Spectator sports fan behavior Please see the first volume here Spectator sports fan behavior is vast and represents one of society's most universal leisure activities While event attendance and media consumption received a great deal of attention from scholars there is a growing understanding that sports fans interact both physically and digitally with their favorite teams in numerous other ways At the same time research also demonstrated a positive relationship between fan identification and self esteem Thus the aim of this Research Topic is to explore fan behaviors in many different areas involving sports media and the ever changing digital environment
