The History of AI

In 1943, British mathematician Alan Turing wrote about the idea of an intelligent machine that could use its own mind to learn and solve a set of instructions.

After a few years, computers and technology had improved enough that the computer scientist John von Neumann wrote one of the first AI programs in 1951. In 1956, several scientists created the term "artificial intelligence." In 1956, after several years of research, the first AI program was created by Allen Newell and Herbert A. Simon, called Logic Theorist, which was the first program to solve problems with human-like intelligence.

In the 1970s, knowledge of computers, AI and technology grew. In 1977, an AI computer named Ross won a chess game against the reigning world chess champion, Bobby Fischer. In 1978, Samuel Eyalon built Labyrinth, an AI program that could solve mazes.
