some practitioners and economists In fact there is a partial disconnection between patent demographics and productivity gains but also the development of actors who do not innovate and who develop business models that their detractors equate with a capture of annuities or a dangerous commodification of patents This book provides a less Manichaeian view of the position of patents in the system of contemporary innovation It first recalls that these criticisms are not new before arguing that if these criticisms have been revived it is because of a partial shift from an integrated innovation system to a much more fragmented and open system This shift accompanied the promotion of a more competitive economy The authors show that this movement is coherent with a more intensive use of patents but also one that is more focused on their signal function than on their function of direct monetary incentive to innovation
