Management Accounting language English abstract The bachelor thesis combines theories literature lab and field experiments event studies from the industry and its very own empirical research to argue from both a strategic as well as a financial perspective that an inimitable organizational culture of intrinsic motivation and meaningful work may constitute a source of competitive advantage within the War for Talent The thesis strives at highlighting the importance for firms to adapt to the newly emerged competitive environment that the ongoing War for Talent has created by considering their people as their most valuable asset for the success of the organization as already hinted at throughout The Art of War by Sun Tzu in 500 BC hence the reference in the title of this thesis After a brief review of the circumstances that led to the emergence of the War for Talent and first implications for the industry it is argued from a strategic perspective why motivated talent depicts the key resource for competitive advantage and why conventional extrinsic incentive measures aimed at maximizing productivity are no longer effective Afterwards a proposition will be made of how capitalizing on intrinsic motivation human s inner drive to accomplish inherently interesting and challenging tasks fostered through a framework of meaningful work might be the decisive driver to get ahead in the quest for talent A second string of argumentation draws a connection between meaningful work and superior financial performance This proposition is then tested by an empirical analysis comparing the financial performance of publicly traded companies featured on the 2017 Fortune 100 Best Companies to Work For list against a control portfolio and the broad market confirming significant differences for cumulative stock returns

Winning the War for Talent Pat Auger, Timothy M. Devinney, Grahame Dowling, Christine Eckert, Nidhida Lin, 2015 McKinsey Company claim to have coined the term the war for talent in 1997 The idea still resonates with managers because it reflects the fact that talented people are a critical driver of corporate success For those involved in this war the search continues for fresh ideas about how to make the recruiting process more desirable what mix of organizational and job attributes will attract talented people how to develop more talented managers and how to design of an attractive workplace environment that retains such people Recent research managerial anecdotes and numerous surveys have highlighted the importance of various aspects of corporate and social reputation to winning the war for talent In this paper aimed mainly at a managerial audience we provide an overview of findings from a series of experiments conducted where MBAs and white collar office workers must choose amongst alternative job contracts Our findings reveal that while reputation matters it is marginal with its effect confined to the bottom and top of the reputation distribution Hence for most companies reputation factors have little substantive influence on job choice relative to more functional and utilitarian aspects of the job and company Winning the War for Talent Chris Czarnik, 2020-08-01 Innovative strategies valuable insights and practical tips for attracting top talent and fostering a culture of engagement and retention Winning the War for Talent by HR manager college career services manager and executive outplacement guru Chris Czarnik covers a broad spectrum of topics including employer branding diversity and inclusion employee engagement talent analytics and future trends in talent management It

Management: An Instrument of Strategic Human Resources Management? Ann-Christine Ehret, 2015-11-17 Master's Thesis from the year 2014 in the subject Leadership and Human Resources Miscellaneous University of Plymouth language English abstract This study provides an investigation on Talent Management in German mid sized enterprises The purpose of this research is to explore whether Talent Management is an instrument usable to overcome external challenges such as demographic changes as well as a shortage in skilled labour to enhance organisational performance and to remain competitive The research determines that Talent Management can be seen as a part of strategic Human Resources Management and in this context as a high performance working system in order to develop motivate and empower talented employees Since empirical data in the national context of Germany are restricted on the one hand and on the other hand research efforts regarding Talent Management in small and medium sized enterprises are of less significance qualitative research methods were used in order to gather deeper insights Three in depth expert interviews were conducted providing valuable information regarding the conceptualisation and operationalisation of Talent Management in the context of German mid sized enterprises The findings reveal that what is of strong importance within small and medium sized enterprises in general is the expansion of the term talent to all employees and their skills and abilities instead of seeking for high potentials and so called A players Furthermore three significant characteristics of German companies being long term and developmentally orientated as well as providing dual vocational training to potential future employees have been identified These qualities underlie the highly specialised industries in which German medium sized enterprises operate skilled labour and development of these is of high importance Overall the dissertation concludes that Talent Management is recognised and implemented as an instrument of strategic human resources management within German medium sized enterprises Special focus is put on investment in the Human Capital as the development and retention of potential is of strong importance However due to limited financial budgets and less recognition of line managers Talent Management stands in its infancy The research recommends further studies in order to investigate the findings and limitations of this dissertation such as the empirically undetected field of Talent Management as a high performing system in national context or within small and medium sized enterprises The Talent War: How Special Operations and Great Organizations Win on Talent Mike

Sarraille, George Randle, 2020-11-10 In our modern business landscape the war for talent is more complex than ever You need to attract and retain the best talent for your organization to win but without the right strategy or mindset you won't be able to compete If your revenue is declining you re losing market share to your competition or your organizational health is deteriorating it s time to evolve how you approach this never ending war After all your PEOPLE not your product or service are your strongest competitive advantage The Talent War explores how US Special Operations Forces SOF assess select and develop their world class talent You ll learn how to adopt a talent mindset the single greatest weapon you can possess in the war for talent When your organization reflects this mindset you will hire train and develop the right people and put them in the best positions to make decisions that allow you to retake the advantage and win the war Winning the War for Talent Kevin Stakelum,2022-12 Companies claim that they cannot find the talent that they need while millions of job seekers claim that they are not even being considered for current or future openings Salaries are increasing as companies try to lure more candidates to their positions but that has not seemed to fix the issue If you are a manager in any size business you will learn how to improve business outcomes through the partnership of all involved in this important process Let talent acquisition expert Kevin Stakelum share 35 years of wisdom with you including Step by step practices for managers to get involved in the hiring process Tips for selection of the best candidates Data based decision making Improve your business and financial outcomes through the use of your talent process Diversity recruiting Flexible resourcing Forecasting and other business based activities The companies that win this competition will be able to provide career growth and trajectory in a much broader sense than what has been done in the past Is your company set up to be agile candidate driven and flexible Begin Winning the War for Talent today The War for Talent ,2010 War for talents. How can human resource managers attract and retain talented employees? ,2020-02-24 Seminar paper from the year 2017 in the subject Leadership and Human Resource War for Talents grade 2 University of applied sciences D sseldorf language English abstract This work defines finding talents as one of the top priorities of human resource management and reviews the practices strategies and plans that can be implemented in order to attract and retain talented employees It shows the external and internal channels by which the organizations can acquire the needed talents At the end it reviews the challenges facing human resource managers in this framework Finding the superior talent is the key issue for human resource managers across the world This issue is being faced by large organizations since the business environment is changing rapidly and the need for technological skills professionals and the ability to operate under different conditions is growing fast According to McKinsey in addition to skills knowledge experience astute character and judgment talent also includes the person s ability to learn and grow The so called war for talent was expressed by the America s largest management consulting firm in 1998 when they published a report stating that better talent is worth fighting for The gap between the demand and supply of talented people represents the scarcity of talents which form a challenge for the human resource managers That brings us to the question what practices plans and strategies should be set and implemented by the human resource managers in order to attract and retain talented people And what are the challenges facing human resource managers in finding the required talents for the organization

Quality of Life, Human Capital and the Innovativeness of European Cities Roland Spitzlinger,2010-05 Diploma

Thesis from the year 2003 in the subject Business economics Business Management Corporate Governance grade Sehr Gut University of Applied Sciences Kufstein Tirol International Business Studies language English abstract On the turn from an industrial to a knowledge based economy the rules of economic geography have changed significantly Human capital and a high quality of life which attracts it have become the most important factors for urban economic growth The goal of the study was to find out whether there is evidence for the hypothesis that European cities with a high quality of life are more innovative The reasoning is that a nice living environment attracts educated people which in the next step lures knowledge based companies and stirs innovative activity The results of the statistical analysis carried out by the author prove the hypothesis that quality of life and innovativeness are connected Specifically a good environmental quality directly supports the production of scientific articles Together with a high educated labor force it also attracts innovative high tech companies which increase the production of patents An overall high quality of life and a high income level attract educated people and increase the knowledge base of a city However a city does not necessarily have to be rich in monetary resources to achieve a good innovative performance In fact the quality of life predicts the innovativeness of European cities better than the income level Despite these findings the author also found evidence that a good environmental condition as well as learning effects through industry agglomeration increase the efficiency of knowledge workers Cities that are home to a big number of high tech companies and offer a nice environment produce considerably more patents per invested R D money than other cities The results of the study suggest that city officials should turn away from attracting high tech companies by mo
