Beyond Oil and Gas George A. Olah, Alain Goeppert, G. K. Surya Prakash, 2006-08-21 In this masterpiece the renowned chemistry Nobel Laureate George A

Olah and his colleagues discuss in a clear and readily accessible manner the use of methanol as a viable alternative to our diminishing fossil fuel resources. They look at the pros and cons of our current main energy sources, namely oil and natural gas, and varied renewable energies and new ways to overcome obstacles. Following an introduction, Olah, Goepfert, and Prakash look at the interrelation of fuels and energy and at the extent of our non-renewable fossil fuel resources. Despite the diminishing reserve and global warming, the authors point out the continuing need for hydrocarbons and their products. They also discuss the envisioned hydrogen economy and its significant shortcomings. The main section then focuses on the methanol economy, including the conversion of carbon dioxide from industrial exhausts, such as flue gases from fossil fuel burning power plants, and carbon dioxide contained in the atmosphere into convenient liquid methanol for fuel uses, notably in fuel cells and as a raw material for hydrocarbons. The book is rounded off with a glimpse into the future. A forward-looking and inspiring work regarding the major challenges of future energy and environmental problems.

Direct Methane to Methanol Vladimir Arutyunov, 2014-01-30

Direct Methane to Methanol: Foundations and Prospects of the Process offers a state-of-the-art account of one of the most interesting and potentially commercial technologies for direct conversion of natural gas into valuable chemicals. The book thoroughly explains the complex and unusual chemistry of the process, as well as possible applications for direct methane to methanol (DMTM). It covers topics involving thermokinetics, pressure, direct oxidation of heavier alkanes, and more, and provides detailed appendices with experimental data and product yields. This book provides all those who work in the field of gas processing and gas chemistry with the theory and experimental data to develop and apply new processes based on direct oxidation of natural gas. All those who deal with oil and natural gas production and processing will learn about this promising technology for the conversion of gas into more valuable chemicals. Reviews more than 350 publications on high-pressure, low-temperature oxidation of methane and other gas-phase hydrocarbons. Contains rare material available for the first time in English. Explains the reasons of previous failure and outlines the way forward for commercial development of the conversion technology. Presents a deep theoretical knowledge of this complex conversion process.

Global Methanol Outlook J. R. Crocco, 1990

System Model of Small-scale Gas-to-methanol Conversion by Engine Reformers Angela Josephine Acocella, 2015

As global energy demands grow and environmental concerns over resource extraction methods intensify, high-impact solutions are becoming increasingly essential. Venting and flaring of associated natural gas represents significant environmental and financial losses, yet it continues in the North Dakota Bakken oil play. The valuable gas resource is wasted due to unfavorable economics and limited pipeline capacity. Similarly in India, underdeveloped gas transport infrastructure and restrictive regulatory frameworks prevent distribution and marketing of natural gas from the northeast regions, leaving it stranded in marginal fields. This thesis establishes a techno-economic model utilizing Aspen Plus chemical processing software and a discounted cash flow model to estimate economic feasibility of implementing MIT engine reformer based gas to liquids GTL systems in the US or India The system reforms natural gas via partial oxidation into synthesis gas syngas in the cylinders of an internal combustion engine and can significantly reduce capital costs over conventional GTL reforming processes The engine is operated in fuel rich conditions to generate the syngas which is synthesized into methanol and dimethyl ether DME Once produced on site these liquids are more easily transported than gases This study assesses the regulatory structures surrounding the upstream methane resource and downstream end product marketability for three scenarios use of DME to replace existing local 1 diesel and 2 liquefied petroleum gas LPG or 3 sale of methanol as a commodity chemical on domestic or global markets The analysis shows the system is economical in both locations In the US the minimum economically efficient production capacity with a 1 2 year payback period is 400 000 860 000 standard cubic feet per day scfpd of natural gas for the range of end use scenarios considered Differences in costs and product market characteristics in India result in a minimum efficient capacity of 330 000 810 000 scfpd of natural gas for the three scenarios
