Designing Assistant Technology Christopher Noessel, 2026-03-17 When artificial intelligence is designed poorly it diminishes people's skills rather than enhancing them. It can even make users less capable and more dependent on AI. In Designing Assistant Technology Christopher Noessel provides a framework for how to use AI to assist users as well as mitigating the risks of de-skilling and overreliance on AI. Who Should Read This Book This book was written with four audiences in mind: Product owners and technology strategists who want to ensure that the software they offer is doing everything it can for users and their organizations; Interaction designers, user experience professionals, educators, and students who will build and inform the direct experiences with these systems; Futurists and tech sector pundits who might want to understand that AI is only as dark as they let it become; Everyone else because part of the responsibility of being a citizen is building literacy in the major forces at play, what biases those forces have, and what needs to be done to combat negative effects. Takeaways You'll learn to understand the conceptual difference between an agent and an assistant; Better understand your business's challenges and how AI can help; Incorporate the book's framework into an existing design process; De-risk how assistants are introduced to a workflow; Learn design patterns to mitigate the risks of assistants; Rely on AI assistants just enough but not too much.

Teaching and Assessing with AI: Teaching Ideas, Research, and Reflections Davide Girardelli, Kelly Merrill Jr., Amy Wanyu Ou, 2026-03-19 By the end of 2022 generative AI technologies based on large language models had become easily accessible and increasingly widespread. As disruptive technologies their full impact and range of applications are still unfolding. Education is one of the six key application areas for generative AI identified by Chiarello et al. (2024) alongside human resources, programming, office automation, social media, and search engines. In education, generative AI offers new possibilities for teaching and assessment such as personalized tutoring, automated feedback, and adaptive systems (e.g., Jensen et al., 2024). However, these innovations also present significant challenges that educators must navigate to ensure that all learners may benefit from them. Specifically, educators are called to tackle, among other things, the changing dynamics of teacher-student communication, the shifting nature of their role, ethical concerns in assessment, and the impact of generative AI on intercultural understanding in increasingly diverse education settings. The aim of this Research Topic is to offer a platform for researchers and educators to reflect on the impact of these technological shifts on classroom culture and to share innovative pedagogical experiments that enhance teaching and assessing practices. The editorial team has chosen a short paper format to capture fresh ideas, conversations, and pedagogical experimentations, making them easily accessible to a wider audience of researchers and teachers. This multidisciplinary project welcomes contributions from teachers and researchers across a variety of fields (e.g., communication, education, computer science, economics, mathematics, and biology). We are particularly interested in practices with cross-disciplinary relevance that can shape classroom cultures at the tertiary level. The generative AI tools discussed in
