Brereton,1992      Tutorial Guide ,2003      Computer Simulation of Thermal Plant Operations Peter O'Kelly,2012-11-27 This book describes thermal plant simulation that is dynamic simulation of plants which produce exchange and otherwise utilize heat as their working medium Directed at chemical mechanical and control engineers involved with operations control and optimization and operator training the book gives the mathematical formulation and use of simulation models of the equipment and systems typically found in these industries The author has adopted a fundamental approach to the subject The initial chapters provide an overview of simulation concepts and describe a suitable computer environment Reviews of relevant numerical computation methods and fundamental thermodynamics are followed by a detailed examination of the basic conservation equations The bulk of the book is concerned with development of specific simulation models Care is taken to trace each model derivation path from the basic underlying physical equations explaining simplifying and restrictive assumptions as they arise and relating the model coefficients to the physical dimensions and physical properties of the working materials Numerous photographs of real equipment complement the text and most models are illustrated by numerical examples based on typical real plant operations      Optical Engineering ,1997 Publishes papers reporting on research and development in optical science and engineering and the practical applications of known optical science engineering and technology      Laser Focus with Fiberoptic Technology ,1982      Selected Papers on Reticles and Their Applications Gustaf Olsson,1999 A collection of 67 discovery and development papers on reticles and their applications Subjects addressed include historical aspects optical modulation filtering and IR target and background signatures      The Software Encyclopedia 2001 ,2001      Quantitative Assessment and Validation of Network

Inference Methods in Bioinformatics Benjamin Haibe-Kains, Frank Emmert-Streib, 2015-04-14 Scientists today have access to an unprecedented arsenal of high tech tools that can be used to thoroughly characterize biological systems of interest High throughput omics technologies enable to generate enormous quantities of data at the DNA RNA epigenetic and proteomic levels One of the major challenges of the post genomic era is to extract functional information by integrating such heterogeneous high throughput genomic data This is not a trivial task as we are increasingly coming to understand that it is not individual genes but rather biological pathways and networks that drive an organism s response to environmental factors and the development of its particular phenotype In order to fully understand the way in which these networks interact or fail to do so in specific states disease for instance we must learn both the structure of the underlying networks and the rules that govern their behavior In recent years there has been an increasing interest in methods that aim to infer biological networks These methods enable the opportunity for better understanding the interactions between genomic features and the overall structure and behavior of the underlying networks So far such network models have been mainly used to identify and validate new interactions between genes of interest But ultimately one could use these networks to predict large scale effects of perturbations such as treatment by multiple targeted drugs However currently we are still at an early stage of comprehending methods and approaches providing a robust statistical framework to quantitatively assess the quality of network inference and its predictive potential The scope of this Research Topic in Bioinformatics and Computational Biology aims at addressing these issues by investigating the various complementary approaches to quantify the quality of network models These validation techniques could focus on assessing quality of specific interactions global and local structures and predictive ability of network models These methods could rely exclusively on in silico evaluation procedures or they could be coupled with novel experimental designs to generate the biological data necessary to properly validate inferred networks
