RHIZOME :

- A rhizome is a horizontal, underground stem that grows parallel to the soil surface.
- It typically has roots and leaves, and can give rise to new stems and shoots at its nodes.
- Rhizomes help in vegetative propagation and storage of food reserves.
- They are horizontal in shape and can sometimes be well or slightly curved.
- They contain vascular bundles and are located in the ground.
- Rhizomes are seen in plants like:
e.g. Sugarcane, banana, ginger, etc.

TUBER :

- A tuber is a thickened stem with short and dense to the main growing stem, lying just below the soil level.
- Roots do not form above.
- Tubers do not have a well-developed growing field.
- Tubers are kept in stock during winter.
- Tubers store food reserves.
- The tuber is covered with a number of depressions called "eyes" and has an arrangement of roots.
e.g. Potato, sweet potato, etc.

Practical Botany Jose K. Santos, 1939 A Laboratory Manual in Practical Botany (Classic Reprint) Charles Herbert Clark, 2018-01-05 Excerpt from A Laboratory Manual in Practical Botany. This course of botanical study here outlined is intended to give the student a general view of the subject and at the same time to lay a foundation upon which more advanced studies may be built. The outline of classification is to serve as a chart in the practical work in the laboratory. The student's first work should be with the practical studies and these are not necessarily to be taken up in the order in which they occur in the classification. To the writer, it seems a good plan to use so much of the classification, morphology, and physiology as are given in these pages as the starting point to ask the student to read as many of the references given in connection with the various subjects as time permits and to require him to embody the results of his reading and practical work in well-considered essays. So pursued, the study of botany provides the means of developing habits of close and accurate observation, of cultivating the reasoning powers, and of teaching the pupil to use clear and correct English that can scarcely be claimed for any other subject pursued in the schools.
