Transport of Dredged Sediment Placed in the Nearshore Zone--Currituck Sand-bypass Study (phase I) Robert K. Schwartz, Frank R. Musialowski, 1980 New dredge disposal techniques may serve the dual role of aiding sand by passing across coastal inlets and beach nourishment provided the dredged sediments placed seaward of the surf zone move shoreward into that zone During the summer of 1976 26 750 cubic meters of relatively coarse sediment was dredged from New River Inlet North Carolina moved down coast by a split hull barge and placed in a 215 meter coastal reach between the 2 and 4 meter depth contours Bathymetric changes on the disposal piles and in the adjacent beach and nearshore area were studied for a 13 week period August to November 1976 to determine the modification of the surrounding beach and nearshore profile and the net transport direction of the disposal sediment The sediment piles initially created a local shoal zone with minimum depths of 0 6 meter Disposal sediment was coarser Mn 0 49 millimeter than the native sand at the disposal site Mn 0 14 millimeter and coarser than the composite mean grain size of the entire profile Mn 0 21 millimeter Shoaling and breaking waves caused rapid erosion of the pile tops and a gradual coalescing of the piles to form a disposal bar located seaward 90 meters of a naturally occurring surf zone bar As the disposal bar relief was reduced the disposal bar associated breaker zone was restricted to low tide times or periods of high wave conditions
