Burglar Bill Frederick Anstey,1880 Fallibilism Jessica Anne Brown,2018 What strength of evidence is required for knowledge Ordinarily we often claim to know something on the basis of evidence which doesn t guarantee its truth For instance one might claim to know that one sees a crow on the basis of visual experience even though having that experience does not guarantee that there is a crow it might be a rook or one might be dreaming As a result those wanting to avoid philosophical scepticism have standardly embraced fallibilism one can know a proposition on the basis of evidence that supports it even if the evidence doesn t guarantee its truth Despite this there s been a persistent temptation to endorse infallibilism according to which knowledge requires evidence that guarantees truth For doesn t it sound contradictory to simultaneously claim to know and admit the possibility of error Infallibilism is undergoing a contemporary renaissance Furthermore recent infallibilists make the surprising claim that they can avoid scepticism Jessica Brown presents a fresh examination of the debate between these two positions She argues that infallibilists can avoid scepticism only at the cost of problematic commitments concerning evidence and evidential support Further she argues that alleged objections to fallibilism are not compelling She concludes that we should be fallibilists In doing so she discusses the nature of evidence evidential support justification blamelessness closure for knowledge defeat epistemic akrasia practical reasoning concessive knowledge attributions and the threshold problem Elegant Edward; a comedy in one act Gertrude E.
