Machinist, 1896 Recent Progress in Slow Sand and Alternative Biofiltration Processes Rolf Gimbel, Nigel Graham, M. Robin Collins, 2006-03-31 Slow sand filtration is typically cited as being the first engineered process in drinking water treatment. Proven modifications to the conventional slow sand filtration process, the awareness of induced biological activity in riverbank filtration systems, and the growth of oxidant-induced biological removals in more rapid rate filters (e.g., biological activated carbon) demonstrate the renaissance of biofiltration as a treatment process that remains viable for both small rural communities and major cities. Biofiltration is expected to become even more common in the future as efforts intensify to decrease the presence of disease-causing microorganisms and disinfection by-products in drinking water to minimize microbial regrowth potential in distribution systems and where operator skill levels are emphasized. Recent Progress in Slow Sand and Alternative Biofiltration Processes provides a state-of-the-art assessment on a variety of biofiltration systems from studies conducted around the world. The authors collectively represent a perspective from 23 countries and include academics, biofiltration system users, designers, and manufacturers. It provides an up-to-date perspective on the physical, chemical, biological, and operational factors affecting the performance of slow sand filtration (SSF), riverbank filtration (RBF), soil aquifer treatment (SAT), and biological activated carbon (BAC) processes. The main themes are comparable overviews of biofiltration systems, slow sand filtration process behavior, treatment performance, and process developments, and alternative biofiltration process behaviors, treatment performances, and process developments. American Phrenological Journal and Life Illustrated, 1896

Teaching Life Skills in the School Library Blanche Woolls, Connie Hamner Williams, 2019-03-08 Drawing on stories from successful programs and research, this book shows librarians how to provide students with the practical information they need for a bright future. Chapters cover career readiness, financial literacy, and civic responsibility at each grade level. From preschool through high school, students are preparing for their future. As they move through grade levels, they choose courses, research potential careers, learn about managing money, and recognize the responsibilities of being active citizens. At each step of the way, librarians can collaborate with teachers to help students learn how to live in a world they can only imagine. School librarians are positioned to make a positive impact on students' lives when it matters most. Focusing on preparation for life after high school, this book cites research and provides anecdotes of successful programs as examples of how school librarians, in collaboration with counselors, community members, public libraries, and teachers, can develop collections and offer programming to show students the importance of finishing high school. Chapters also explain how to help students find the college or university that fits with their educational interests and won't cause them to incur enormous debt. Included in every chapter are activities, resources, and lesson plans around topics at each grade level for librarians to co-teach with teachers, counselors, and other school staff. American Economist, 1923
