Eating

Consumption of food is a universal necessity. Different cultures have developed different methods to accomplish the task. It is interesting to discover these differences and learn new ways to do things. European cultures developed cutlery (knives, forks, and spoons) to enable people to efficiently eat their food. Correct use of this tools changes with the times-what was polite in 1800 may not be considered proper manners today. China developed the chopstick as an efficient tool for eating. Mastery of the use of chopsticks can be difficult for the person not raised in the culture. The attempts of a novice to use chopsticks can be very amusing to the watcher, but frustrating for the hungry diner. Space travel has created new challenges for consuming food. Squeeze bottles and other unique packaging have enabled space travelers to get their needed nutrition. Chopsticks and forks do not work well in space.

Interdisciplinary Perspectives on Learning to Read Kathy Hall, Usha Goswami, Colin Harrison, Sue Ellis, Janet Soler, 2010-04-05 Interdisciplinary Perspectives on Learning to Read brings together different disciplinary perspectives and studies on reading for all those who seek to extend and enrich the current practice research and policy debates. The breadth of knowledge that underpins pedagogy is a central theme and the book will help educators, policy makers and researchers understand the full range of research perspectives that must inform decisions about the development of reading in schools. The book offers invaluable insights into learners who do not achieve their full potential. The chapters have been written by key figures in education, psychology, sociology and neuroscience and promote discussion of comprehension, gender and literacy attainment, phonics and decoding, digital literacy at home and school, bilingual learners and reading dyslexia and special educational needs, evidence based literacy, visual texts. This book encompasses a comprehensive range of conceptual perspectives on reading pedagogy and offers a wealth of new insights to support innovative research directions. Fluency and Reading Comprehension in Typical Readers and Dyslexic Readers: Volume II Manuel Soriano-Ferrer, Simone Aparecida Capellini, Giseli Donadon Germano, 2024-03-06 This Research Topic is the second edition of Fluency and reading comprehension in typical readers and dyslexic readers. Volume I. This Second Edition Research Topic is focused on the characterization of the reading writing difficulties and their comorbidities and in the analysis of evidence based recommendations for early interventions and treatment of these difficulties within the fields of neuropsychology, speech language pathology and educational psychology. Reading involves decoding and comprehension components and to become efficient it requires a large number of cognitive and linguistic processes. Among those decoding failures can have different origins such as deficits in phonological and/or visual processing. In addition, a child with reading difficulties might also have problems in the acquisition of writing and handwriting performance. This is an important point to be discussed as reading and writing both suffer interference from vocabulary acquisition, linguistic skills, memory skills, reading and writing practices and literacy methods. These processes become important only when the professional needs to deal with students presenting learning difficulties. Difficulty in using the knowledge of conversion rules between grapheme-phoneme to word reading construction or phoneme-grapheme for writing can be identified in schoolchildren with dyslexia, dysgraphia and dysortography being a specific learning disorder with a neurological etiology. In addition, there is established evidence of a speech language processing basis. Students with specific learning disabilities can show a range of cognitive difficulties e.g. rapid naming, executive functioning, working memory. These presented difficulties interfere in their learning process impairing their learning development. The Oxford Handbook of Deaf Studies in Learning and Cognition Marc Marschark, Harry Knoors, 2020-04-15 The Oxford Handbook of Deaf Studies in Learning and Cognition focuses exclusively on learning, cognition and cognitive development with regard to deaf individuals from theoretical, psychological, biological
