Sampling Methods, Remote Sensing and GIS Multiresource Forest Inventory Michael Köhl, Steen S. Magnussen, Marco Marchetti, 2006-10-19 When we talk about forests we talk about 30% of our planet's land surface 6 area In 2000 there was an estimated 3 870 10 ha of forest worldwide of which 1 5% is in forest plantations and 95% in natural forests FAO 2003 Forests are not only a source for timber they also generate significant nonwood goods and services mitigate climate change conserve biological diversity provide protection from natural hazards and not least provide recreational areas for an increasingly urbanized world population The availability of timber and non wood goods and services is waning as deforestation and degradation of tropical forests continue While forest area has stabilized or is slightly increasing in the boreal and temperate regions the annual loss of forest area in the tropics and subtropics is decreasing Between 1990 and 2000 the annual rate of deforestation was estimated to be 14 6 10 ha approximately 0 38% and took place mainly in tropical and subtropical forests FAO 2003 The net annual rate of change is about 9 4 10 ha 0 2% Maintaining and enhancing forest areas and the Quantity and Quality in Forest Research, 1991 Sustainable Forest Management Hubert Hasenauer, 2006-03-29 There is a strong movement towards uneven aged forest management based on the idea that such stands increase or at least maintain soil fertility increase biodiversity and improve stand resilience This shift in forest management practice renders existing yield tables increasingly unreliable Among potential alternatives are tree growth models because they predict the growth of each tree within a forest stand This book summarizes three years of work related to the topic carried out as a joint effort of leading tree growth modellers across Europe together with forest companies By means of nine specific examples it demonstrates the problem solving potential of tree growth modeling theory as required by various end user groups Forest Science, 2014 Forest Resource Economics And Policy Research Paul V.
